Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Saturday 27 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
North dry, mild and sunny. South rather cloudy.

Today:
Early rain across the north soon dying out, then dry and mainly sunny. Central and southern areas seeing a bright start in places, otherwise mostly cloudy with a little light rain in places. Mild.

Tonight:
Central and southern areas mostly cloudy and misty with the odd patch of drizzle. Northern Scotland dry with mostly clear skies and a frost, perhaps cloudier along the west coast.

Sunday:
Areas of fog and low cloud burning off through the morning. Otherwise a dry day with some sunshine, unbroken sunshine possible in the northeast. Mild.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Remaining dry with some sunshine, although overnight mist low cloud may linger across parts of the south and east. Some overnight frost, but feeling mild in the sunshine.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.